

Note: College students must submit their applications through their campus representatives. Each university holds internal competitions to select two students to send to state-level competition. Every campus sets its own internal deadline. At U of L the deadline for the summer of 2006 competition is in the first week of November.

Note: Not all the institutions named above have updated their websites for the summer of 2006. Write your preliminary essays about what you want to study based on what is now on the web. Often, the institutions offer similar course from year to year, so the courses taught in 2006 will likely resemble those taught in 2005.

Note: Revise and submit final applications and essays for state-level competition by January 11, 2006 (college students); January 18 (high school teachers)